

Late Escapes to Africa with Somak

Enjoy the beaches, game parks or the 'Mother City' away from the crowds, and grab a great deal!

On the Kenya coast May is traditionally the wettest month with June being drier. The normally arid plains of the Mara turn a lush verdant green in May and June. The storms provide spectacular sunsets, and there are relatively few visitors around the parks at this time of the year.

In June Zanzibar experiences drier weather conditions after the rains. With less humidity and relatively uncrowded beaches, the island offers a tranquil environment on which to unwind.

In South Africa the weather in the Western Cape is always unpredictable in winter months. However, there is always plenty to enjoy. Visits to Cape Point or across the waters to Robben Island, to Stellenbosch for the wine festival or to Hermanus for the start of the whale watching season.

Kenya Airways have special offer fares to Kenya and Tanzania for travel up to 30 November that must be booked before 9 May. Connect to Heathrow from 5 UK domestic airports flying with bmi – supplements apply. Please call our Reservations team for prices and information
